

Announcement of the Fulbright Scholarship Award in Environmental Health Studies at the Harvard School of Public Health

The Harvard School of Public Health (HSPH) is pleased to announce a Fulbright Cyprus Commission scholarship opportunity for its graduate programs in environment health.

- The Program accepts applications for outstanding students each year from Cyprus to enroll in graduate programs in the department of environmental health at the Harvard School of Public Health;
- Candidates from various disciplines are encouraged to apply including medicine, engineering, public health, as well as physical and biological sciences;
- The Program trains students to assume key academic and research positions in environmental health throughout the Eastern Mediterranean region;
- Full scholarships to include tuition and living expenses are offered to highly-qualified candidates.

For more information, please contact:

Alice Smythe
Harvard-Cyprus Program Coordinator
Harvard School of Public Health
+1-617-384-8831
Email: amsythe@hsph.harvard.edu

www.hsph.harvard.edu/cyprus