CORE VALUES

Core values, concepts, and principles of the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health

- Health is a fundamental right of every human being.
- Public health has the responsibility to improve and protect the health of all populations, especially the most vulnerable of these—children, the elderly, the poor, and the underserved.
- Public health must emphasize prevention and embrace collective, multifaceted action to respond to emerging challenges to health practitioners and researchers; it must investigate disease determinants and risks, improve health care quality and delivery, and influence policy.
- Institutions of public health should provide information that promotes health in populations and empowers individuals to make sound health decisions.
- The educational and research agenda of a public health institution must transcend local and national boundaries—health is a global concern.
- A public health institution should support the ideal of service in all its aspects—research, teaching, community involvement, and communication.
- All members of a public health institution should respect the highest principles of scientific and academic conduct, foster open inquiry, and honor individual rights.

WELCOME

Dear Harvard Chan Students,

Since my arrival here in the summer of 2020, it has been a pleasure meeting, collaborating with, and getting to know so many wonderful and dedicated students at the Harvard T. H. Chan School of Public Health. With the collaboration of student leaders, our Office of Diversity and Inclusion has developed a new resource guide for Harvard Chan students from historically marginalized populations in public health.

Our office created this resource guide because we know all that comes with entering a new city, state, community, or country—while also trying to find resources, establish connections, and build relationships centered on meeting the needs of those with lived experiences and identities similar to your own. Our goal is to make sure that all of our community members have equitable access to the local identity-based resources and cultural amenities that can often be difficult to access and learn about—especially as a new member of that community. In sharing this resource, we recognize that not all individuals who self-identify as being a part of an under-represented community will seek out a resource such as this guide, and at the same time we know that every year, new students join our School with the intention of not only excelling in their respective endeavors, but also of finding community.

Looking back, in my undergraduate and graduate studies, and as a Black, African, Cape Verdean individual and first-generation college student, the relationships that I built in such affinity spaces and my access to communities reflective of my culture and identity, were an integral part of not only my educational journey, but also of my growth as an individual, my support network, and my journey through society.

This guide provides information and resources in multiple areas, all of which are intended to better assist students in navigating local communities in the greater Boston region, to explore cultural amenities in various neighborhoods, and to increase awareness of about local organizations and resources advocating for members of historically under-represented and marginalized communities.

This resource guide will be a living document that we expect to evolve over time as we continue to deepen our knowledge of what is most important to our students with each incoming class. We also invite your suggestions and feedback as we continuously look to strengthen this resource.

I wish you all success in your next steps, and as an office we are committed to fostering an environment where you can also thrive while being your authentic and unapologetic self.

Regards,

Amarildo “Lilu” Barbosa he/him/his

OFFICE OF DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION

The mission of the Office of Diversity and Inclusion (ODI) is to promote equity, diversity, and inclusion within the Harvard Chan community and beyond. We hope to create a culture which advances both the public's health through learning, discovery, communication, and the mental health and well-being of our community through intentional and meaningful acts of personal growth, compassion and support. The Office is here to serve as a resource for all community members. ODI promotes equity, diversity, inclusion, and belonging within our school and greater community through:

- 1. Implementing strategies and approaches to foster greater equity and inclusive cultures
- 2. Engaging with our institutional leaders on key diversity issues and priorities
- 3. Using empirical data to inform members of our community
- 4. Promoting inclusive teaching and learning environments
- 5. Advocating for fairness and equity, creating culturally competent climate, and culturally safe spaces
- 6. Identifying and sourcing pipeline talent through mentoring, the use of retention strategies, and providing leadership to students, faculty, and staff

In addition, ODI provides advice, guidance, mentoring, outreach, diversity and intercultural learning modules, resources, support services, and programming to the Harvard Chan community. To this end, the Office aims to create an inclusive campus environment for all members of the Harvard Chan community, including students, staff, faculty, postdoctoral candidates, researchers, and other community members. There are many ways to get involved—whether it is studying and relaxing in the office, becoming an Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Fellow, joining our diversity committees and working groups, working on specific ODI projects, assisting with pipeline programs or meeting at different events, ODI looks forward to meeting and getting to know you.

Some examples of ODI signature programs are: Self, Social, and Global Awareness; Health Equity and Leadership (HEAL) Conference; Yerby Diversity Lectures; Youth in Public Health Summit; and the Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Fellowship Program. The Office also co-sponsors numerous events with other Harvard schools, offices, and departments within the Harvard Chan School, student organizations, and other entities, that support programming related to racial justice, gender identity, disability, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation, diversity, inclusion.

In addition to ODI space and programs, the ODI staff members are available to meet with students for consultations, individually or in small groups. If you are experiencing a challenge, or just have a question, please do not hesitate to stop by the office or contact an ODI staff member to schedule an appointment. Additionally, ODI has access to information highlighting resources on campus and in the surrounding Boston area.

ODI is also home to the Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (EDI) Fellows, a cohort of students who assist with workshop development and programming throughout the year. If you are interested in serving as an EDI Fellow, please contact one of the ODI staff members to learn about the application process.

NEIGHBORHOOD DESCRIPTIONS

Back Bay

Characterized by its old-fashioned brownstone houses, Parisian-style boulevards, tree-lined sidewalks, trendy shops, and tourist attractions, the Back Bay is a beautiful place to live. Back Bay features Copley Square, The Boston Common and Gardens, and the Charles River. Newbury Street is also located in the Back Bay, which boasts some of Boston's best shopping. Advantages of Back Bay include its proximity to BU's Medical Campus, offering many students the opportunity to either walk or bike to school. As with everything that is good, it has its drawbacks. Parking is very difficult, and the rent can tend to get a bit expensive. The area stretches from the heart of BU's Charles River campus to the Boston Gardens.

Beacon Hill

Located in the heart of Boston, Beacon Hill is home to Suffolk University, Massachusetts General Hospital, and a short walk from the Financial District and Government Center. The area features 19th and 20th century brownstones, cobblestone streets, old-fashioned narrow alleyways and occasional park-like areas with big trees. Because of its central location and Charles Street "T" stop on the Red Line, Beacon Hill also allows easy access to all of Boston's activities.

Consequently, this desirable, historic area is crowded, expensive, and the apartments are usually small. Due to narrow streets and overcrowding, parking is minimal.

Brookline Village

Brookline Village is one of the neighborhoods in Brookline that is within walking distance of the Longwood Medical Area, going south on Brookline Avenue. Here, too, you will find a wide range of ethnic and specialty restaurants. It is accessible by the subway. (Brookline Village stop on the D Green Line).

Coolidge Corner

One of the two neighborhoods in Brookline that are very close to the Longwood Medical Area, the other being Brookline Village. There is a wide range of ethnic and specialty restaurants here, and a variety of shops selling shoes, clothes, books and gifts. It is accessible by subway (Coolidge Corner train on the Green Line) and by bus (Route 66, 65 and 60).

Dorchester

As Boston's largest community, Dorchester remains very much a residential neighborhood. Due to its size, Dorchester has several smaller communities within it.

Rental prices in Dorchester are generally reasonable. Regal Victorians, triple-deckers, and waterfront spots in Savin Hill and Columbia Point offer an array of housing choices. Portions of Dorchester near the Harbor tend to be more expensive than their inland and more densely populated counterparts. Transportation along the Red Line is reliable and traveling time depends on the location and time of day, usually around 10-25 minutes. Some buses also pass by Boston Medical Center and Dudley Square Bus Station.

Fenway

The Fenway, perhaps best known as the home for the "boys of summer," is more than just a ballpark. It is actually a dense urban neighborhood with a considerable amount of green space (the "Fens").

Although the Fenway consists of a large number of college students, it also contains a significant population of professionals, young and old. The famous, or infamous, Lansdowne Street, bordering the Mass Pike on the North and Fenway Park on the South, is home to many of Boston's most popular clubs and watering holes. If you travel the street, however, keep your eyes open for the occasional home run ball that clears the green monster.

Jamaica Plain

At the southern edge of Boston, there lies an inclusive and diverse location. A place where art and ideas are shared freely. It is a dynamic community with the luxury of a beautiful neighborhood. The hustle and bustle on Centre Street is balanced by the cool breeze off Jamaica pond and the enhancing greenery in the Arnold Arboretum.

Mission Hill

Once filled with farms and most of the breweries in Boston, Mission Hill today is an architectural landmark district with a combination of freestanding houses built by early wealthy landowners, blocks of traditional brick row houses, and many triple deckers. Many families and some students and staff from the nearby Longwood Medical Area come to Mission Hill for the affordable rents. A diverse community in proximity to downtown, Mission Hill offers its residents an excellent view of the neighborhood.

Roxbury

A drive through Roxbury is both a history lesson and a tour of a modern urban neighborhood. One of the oldest neighborhoods in Boston, Roxbury has long thrived on its proximity to downtown while retaining its neighborhood qualities. Home to a great number of parks, schools and churches, a visitor can see Boston's history in the architecture and landmarks of the neighborhood. At the same time, Roxbury is a thriving community with a multitude of housing options and a variety of ethnic shops.

South End

Boston Medical Center is located in the South End, so the commute to school, in most cases, is a short walk or bike ride and very convenient. The area is undergoing a renovation and redevelopment, and some beautiful old homes from the past century are being restored, Victorian brick row houses.

SUBWAY/TRAIN

The Green Line and Orange Line are the closest subway lines. The D (Riverside) and the E (Arborway) lines both have Longwood stops. For more information, please go to www.mbta.com. The closest Orange line stop is Ruggles (Northeastern), a 10 – 15 minute walk from the Longwood medical area. You can pay by Charlie Ticket or cash for single rides ($2.75) or you can purchase a plastic CharlieCard and load a monthly T-pass on it. Using a CharlieCard the cost is $2.25 a ride with free subway and bus transfers.

BUS

Bus fare for most routes is $2.00 or $1.70 with a CharlieCard (some of the longer routes and express routes cost more). Unlike transferring between connecting rapid transit lines, you must pay again when transferring from one bus to another or between rapid transit and buses. Get a T-Pass, either the Charlie Ticket which you can purchase at a T station or a CharlieCard which you can load with a monthly T-Pass and receive free bus transfers. ## RESOURCE FOR EXPLORATION

Native Land Digital Map

Our Mission

Native Land Digital strives to create and foster conversations about the history of colonialism, Indigenous ways of knowing, and settler-Indigenous relations, through educational resources such as our map and Territory Acknowledgement Guide. We strive to go beyond old ways of talking about Indigenous people and to develop a platform where Indigenous communities can represent themselves and their histories on their own terms. In doing so, Native Land Digital creates spaces where non-Indigenous people can be invited and challenged to learn more about the lands they inhabit, the history of those lands, and how to actively be part of a better future going forward together.
