

Nutrition and Global Health Internship Opportunity

Project Title: Various Lown Scholars Program projects

Duration: Depends on project

Preferred Student Level: Masters

Qualifications Desired: Data analysis, study design, and writing skills.

Compensation: Funding for internships is limited and course credit may be possible for some students. Please contact us for more information.

Various Project Titles:

- Cluster randomized controlled trial for lowering blood pressure among old adults with hypertension and depression within the Family Health Strategy in São Paulo, Brazil
- Acceptability, feasibility and effectiveness of a worksite intervention to reduce cardiometabolic risk in Mexico
- Cost-effectiveness of risk-based prevention in primary health care setting in rural and urban areas in Iran: from prediction to action (PredAction project)
- Access to medications in Cuban moderate-high cardiovascular risk hypertensive patients: A pilot study
- Effect of Socioeconomic Status on Cardiometabolic Risk During the Venezuelan Humanitarian Crisis: EVESCAM Cohort Study
- Effectiveness of a community based education and peer support led by women self-help group members in improving the control of hypertension: an implementation research in urban slums of Kochi city, Kerala, India
- Cardiovascular Health in Urban Poor and Middle Income Communities in Jamaica: Impact of Psychosocial Stress, Social Networks and Social Support
- Worksite Intervention Study to Prevent Diabetes in Nepal

Please visit <https://www.hsph.harvard.edu/lownscholars/lown-projects/> for more information.

How to Apply: Please contact the project PI and Goodarz Danaei for more information about getting involved on a Lown Scholar Program project.

Contact: Goodarz Danaei (gdanaei@hsph.harvard.edu)