\*NEW: Simons Foundation Autism Research Initiative: SFARI Pilot Awards

Deadline: June 13, 2024

The goal of the Pilot Award is to provide early support for exploratory ideas considered higher risk but with the potential for transformative results, particularly those with novel hypotheses for autism. This funding mechanism is particularly suitable for investigators new to the autism field, though we encourage applicants to consult with experts in autism research to ensure their projects are relevant to the human condition. We encourage applications that propose research to link genetic or other ASD risk factors to molecular, cellular, circuit or behavioral mechanisms and set the stage for development of novel interventions, including work in human subjects.

Deadline: June 13, 2024

The goal of the Pilot Progression Award is to provide continuing support for projects initiated during SFARI Pilot awards that have advanced significantly and produced insights that justify an extension. We have always intended for SFARI Pilot awards to allow investigators to generate the preliminary data necessary to obtain continued funding from other sources for these novel projects, and indeed we have found that Pilot projects often lead to successful applications to the National Institutes of Health (NIH) or other government funding agencies. However, we recognize that some projects remain too risky or are not considered high priority for other funders, yet they remain relevant and important to SFARI's mission. The Pilot Progression Award is intended to fill this gap. Applicants are encouraged, where possible, to provide evidence of attempts to obtain funding for proposed work from other sources.
