Regulating the Runway: Can OSHA Protect Models from Starvation?

Katherine L. Record, JD, MPH, MA
Senior Fellow, Center for Health Law & Policy Innovation
Harvard Law School

Learning Objectives: Participants will be able to 1) describe occupational hazards in the modeling industry; 2) discuss legal options for reducing reliance on dangerously low-weight models; 3) identify potential barriers to regulating the modeling industry; and 4) explain broader implications of the modeling industry with respect to the prevalence of eating disorders.