A bench scientist with a passion for the environment

Research by Peter Wagner, PhD '15, suggests that some people have a genetic variant that helps protect them against lead's harmful effects. This discovery could help improve children's outcomes when they're exposed to lead.

Prof. Marvin Zelen remembered as 'magnificent human being'

Several hundred colleagues, family, and friends from as far away as Israel and Japan gathered on May 22 to celebrate the life and lasting impact of Marvin Zelen.
