

If you are still having problems viewing this message, please click here for additional help.

October 1, 2015

Kiosk

Register today for HUBweek

Our HUBweek event will examine ways to address four major global health threats affecting millions of people.

Sustainable development and health

The Sustainable Development Goals recently adopted by the United Nations represent a new agenda for the planet's health.

Butter is not back

A new study refutes findings from a controversial 2014 paper that questioned recommendations for limiting saturated fat for heart health.

Event Highlights

The Forum: Revisiting race, criminal justice, and health

Live webcast

October 1
12:30-1:30 PM

Women and Health: The key to sustainable development

October 6
12:30-1:20 PM
Kresge G2

#BlackLivesMatter – A Challenge to the Medical and Public Health Communities

Mary T. Bassett
October 26
4:00 PM
Kresge, G1
RSVP

Event calendar >

Research news

Drink up: Health benefits of coffee are numerous

Daily sugary drink habit increases risk of type 2 diabetes, heart attack, stroke

Tracking disease at world's largest religious festival

Cervical cancer screening practices inefficient, costly

Health reform in Turkey achieves universal coverage, improves health

Exploring the health value of global fisheries

Around the School

Postdocs thanked at annual appreciation day

Over 100 postdocs, research associates, and faculty mentors celebrated "Postdoc Appreciation Day" on September 24 in the FXB Atrium.

Rethinking cholesterol

During a Forum panel discussion, experts said that simple lifestyle choices can help most people lower their cholesterol and reduce the effects of associated conditions.

Adding wellness training to medical education

Writing in the Journal of Graduate Medical Education, David Eisenberg says that medical students should receive more nutrition and wellness training in order to help stem the tide of obesity and its related diseases.

Building resilient and sustainable health systems

During the recent meeting of the United Nations General Assembly Atul Gawande helped launch a new program that will enable countries to more effectively measure and improve primary health care.

COPD heightens deadly lung cancer risk in smokers

Investing in radiotherapy for cancer patients worldwide

Can certain fruits and vegetables prevent weight gain?

States with tighter gun laws have fewer armed youth on the streets

You're receiving this email because you are a staff member or academic appointee.

Unsubscribe

Quick links:

Kiosk issue archive | School home page

Latest news coverage | Event calendar

Download our app for iPhone | Download Harvard Public Health magazine for e-reader

Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health | 90 Smith Street | Boston, MA 02120

Contact us