

Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health
Department of Global Health and Population
Research Internship Opportunity

Project Title:

Evaluation of Health Nutrition and Population Programme (HNPP) as well as burden and implication of chronic disease in Bangladesh

Assess next-generation global health problems, e.g. sleep, noise, physical activity

Country/Countries in which the work would take place:

Bangladesh

Brief description of project/research:

This study is planned to assess the performance of global health indicator at the community level in the programme working areas. This approach will allow us to compare the impact of different health interventions across the country as well as generate up-to-date and disaggregated information to assess the situation of children, women and adult population in Bangladesh. The study is aiming to provide data needed to monitor progress towards achieving the SDGs with equity on the basis of SPA indicators. This would help programme to avail detailed thematic and geographic social sector information that will facilitate prioritisation, and better targeting of future investments in the context of the five-year development plan that is being prepared by the Government.

Brief description of work for potential intern(s):

Global health field work, check the quality of data and address errors; use appropriate statistical analytical methods to address the study question; draw and defend scientific inferences; prepare first draft of research reports according to agreed structure, present research findings at seminars as well as drafting research manuscripts/papers.

Minimum expected duration of internship(s):

3-6 months

List any available funds: (travel costs, student stipend, housing, etc.)? None

Number of internships available:

3-4 (one global maternal child health, one chronic disease, one Tuberculosis and Malaria and one Nutrition)

Primary contact:

Dr Mahfuzar Rahman, Research & Evaluation Division, BRAC Email: mahfuzar.rahman@brac.net

Secondary contact:

Rachel Kabir, Director in charge of BRAC Internship Unit Email: rachel.kabir@brac.net

Harvard Contact/Affiliation (if applicable):